RESUME: noun, ré-su-mé, rezə ,mā: a brief written account of personal, educational, and professional qualifications and experience, as that prepared by an applicant for a job.

Focus:

The resume must be able to stand alone without a cover letter. The reader must be able to immediately recognize the purpose of the resume.

Qualifications that match the job:

Identify skills, core attributes, and experiences that show your value to the reader -- tell the employer what you can do for them.

Action Verb + Skill + Task = Result:

Use this formula for writing a bulleted phrase that defines your work experience.

Balance:

Document must look aesthetically pleasing and fit on one page.

Font size/style:

10-12pt. Times New Roman, Arial, Calibri.

Speed:

Must be able to be scanned in 15 seconds or less.

Originality:

Avoid using templates from Word or other processing programs.

DEVELOPING STRONG BULLET POINTS

Map it out

Do not think about a job or experience based solely on what you did, but also what you gained and learned. Employers will be evaluating you based on what you can do for their company. Your past experiences are meant to determine whether or not your contribution will be positive.

Resume Tips

Remember that your social media presence is part of your image and part of your resume. Employers will check Twitter and other social media sites.

Tailor each resume to the position you are applying for and match language used in a position description.

Use PDF format when uploading or emailing documents to employers.

Use white space to indicate when each topic ends.

If you have taken a class or classes that help you meet the minimum employment qualifications, which can't be met otherwise, then list those classes on your resume.

After freshman year in college, high school activities and honors should no longer be included.

Avoid using lots of bold, underlined words, and or fancy fonts.

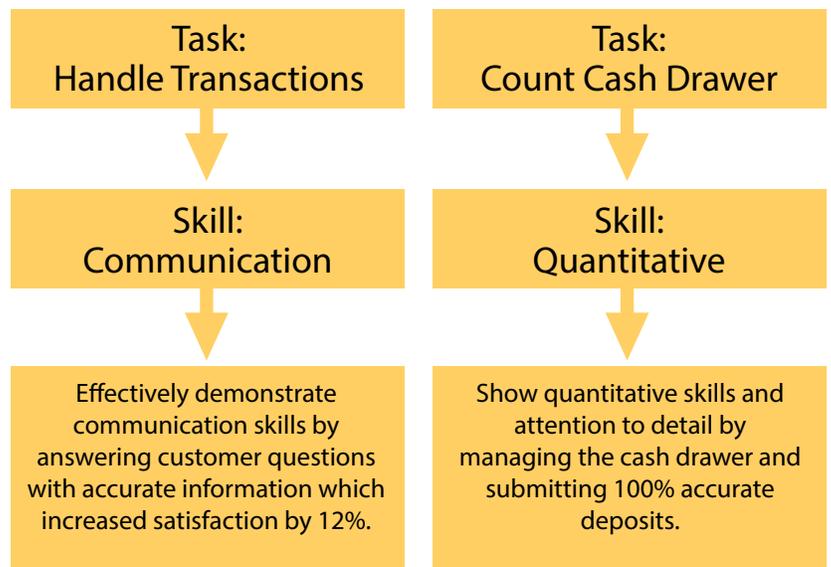

Create margins between .75" and 1".

Select the skills you have that will be the most meaningful for the job you are applying for. Do not get trapped into simply listing the tasks you did without explaining the skills that were used and the result.
