HOW TREVOR YOCUM IS PRESERVING KANSAS HISTORY

4/9/26

The plains of Western Kansas are known for being wide and flat. But in the small community of Liebenthal, something big breaks up the horizon. Rising from the prairie is the St. Joseph's Parish complex, a stunning display of Gothic architecture crafted from the very earth it stands upon.

For decades, these "Post Rock" limestone buildings have served as the heartbeat of Liebenthal. Now, thanks to the dedicated work of Fort Hays State University graduate student Trevor Yocum, their significance is finally being cemented into the official record of Kansas history.
